Putin wins landslide; foes decry poll

MOSCOW — Vladimir Putin won a landslide victory in the Russian presidential election, securing 70 percent of the vote, according to preliminary results. His opponents, including the opposition leader, Dmitry Medvedev, accused the government of rigging the poll.

Putin, 54, has served as prime minister since 2004 and as president from 2000 to 2004. He is the first Russian leader to be elected to a second term.

Medvedev, 42, is a former tennis player and businessman. He was Putin's vice president and a close ally.

The election was held on Dec. 2, 2007. It was the first time that a presidential election was held in Russia since the 1999 election.

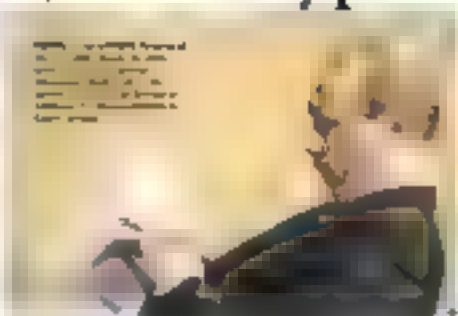

The results were announced by the Central Election Commission on Dec. 3. Putin received 70.28 percent of the vote, Medvedev received 27.21 percent, and the third-place candidate, Gennadiy Yavlinsky, received 2.51 percent.

Medvedev and Yavlinsky both called for a re-run of the election. Medvedev said that the results were "not credible" and that the election was "rigged."

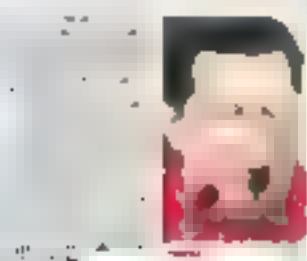

Yavlinsky said that the election was "a farce" and that the results were "a lie."

Putin, however, claimed victory and said that he was "proud" of his win. He said that the results reflected the "will of the Russian people."

He also said that he would continue to work for the "peace and stability" of Russia and the world.

Venezuela's Chavez loses president-for-life vote

Threaten via Afghan road

CARACAS — Hugo Chavez, the President of Venezuela, lost a referendum on Dec. 2, 2007, that would have granted him the right to serve as president for life. The referendum was held on the same day as the Russian presidential election.

Chavez, 58, has served as president since 1999. He is a member of the United States' National Endowment for Democracy's list of "authoritarian leaders."

The referendum was held to decide whether or not Chavez should be allowed to run for president again in 2015. The results were announced by the National Electoral Commission on Dec. 3.

Chavez received 50.9 percent of the vote, while his opponents received 49.1 percent.

Chavez said that he was "disappointed" by the results. He said that he would continue to serve as president until 2015.

His opponents, however, claimed victory and said that the results reflected the "will of the Venezuelan people."

They also said that Chavez's agents had been overthrown and that they were threatening to take control of the country via the Afghan road.

PBC's Hontiveros calls Tee, Gatchalian 'uncoachable'

By Riea Ballester

Philippine Basketball Commission (PBC) Commissioner Ramon Hontiveros has called the coaching staff of the Philippine Basketball Association (PBA) "uncoachable" after the team's poor performance in the recent season. Hontiveros, who has been in charge of the PBC since 2001, expressed his frustration over the team's lack of progress and the coaching staff's inability to improve the team's performance. He stated that the coaching staff has been "uncoachable" and that he has lost confidence in their ability to lead the team to success. Hontiveros also mentioned that he has been considering other options for the coaching staff, but he has not yet made a final decision. He emphasized that the PBC is committed to finding the best coaching staff for the team and that he will not be satisfied until the team is performing at a high level.

MANILA (Inquirer) — The Philippine peso hit a seven-and-a-half-year high of 42.27 to the US dollar on Tuesday, as investors bet on a strong recovery for the local economy.

The peso's rise was fueled by a combination of factors, including a strong performance in the third quarter and a decline in the value of the dollar. Analysts expect the peso to continue its upward trend in the near future.

Beyond the secret Law of Attraction

Everyone has heard of the Law of Attraction, the idea that you can attract what you want by focusing your thoughts on it. But what if you want to attract something that is not good for you? What if you want to attract a bad relationship or a bad job? This is where the secret Law of Attraction comes in. It is a more advanced version of the Law of Attraction that allows you to attract anything you want, even if it is bad for you.
